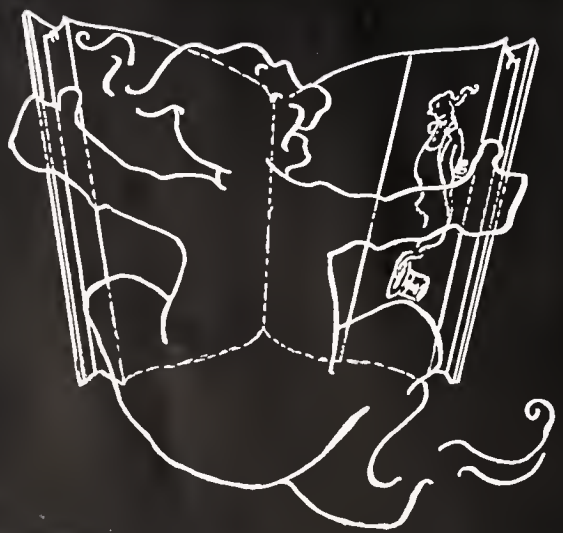
Here is your 1955 Whirligig . . .

It's not just a record of our year together here but also an interpretation of what Senior High has been — and what its spirit has meant — to each of us.



the 1955

Whirligig

Published by the students of Greensboro Senior High School
Greensboro, North Carolina

To you who are the Spirit . . .

There's a fiber threaded through the fabric of our days at Senior High . . .
To the pattern and the texture it gives a permanence,
To the color and design it lends a vivid gleam.
It gives us strength we need to go that second mile;
Its force will bind us always, though we part.

There's a flame that lights the lustreless gloom of work and worry . . .
On tiresome chores of homework it sheds its glow.
To aching weariness of football practice
it brings its cheering lift;
Through hours of toil to meet a deadline, or polish a speech
It lends a spark of inspiration.
It spreads its light to banish the shadows of dissension,
To teach us how to help and how to share.

There's a song that spreads its melody through all the ugly noise . . .
It brings its harmony to discords of clashing wills;
Above the whine of excuses there flows its lilting note;
Sounds of discouragement and discontent are lost in its lovely tune.
It sings to give our march a rhythm and a lilt,
To keep us all in step along the way.

And so . . . to this Spirit of Senior High — the fiber,
the thread, the song — and to those who cherish it:
Every member of its faculty and student body,

We dedicate this 1955 WHIRLIGIG.

In newspaper editorials, at pep rallies, along the halls, in class, sometimes—everywhere we turn we hear the words "school spirit." But what is it? Certainly the spirit at a football game seems different from that in a classroom. Yet they are the same. Our special brand of GHS spirit is the reason why girls cry at commencement, why 1700 faculty and student members of our school give their enthusiastic support to every school activity, why many give that extra time and effort to surpass the average, to achieve the difficult.

. . . A Spirited Story of our Year

In designing this book we have tried to give you more than pictures and copy, more than a mere record of events and achievements. We believe that our school, far more than buildings, routine, and things, is people and the feeling they share in greater and lesser degree. In these pages we attempt to interpret the GHS spirit as it weaves itself into the pattern of our school every single day.

OUR SCHOOL is people:*
It's the principal advising,
Being a friend;
It's the teachers
Giving tirelessly to lead,
To inspire, to open doors;
It's students, casual
Or serious, avid to know,
Eager to speak;
It's people with hopes,
Anxieties, dreams,
Permanent school spirit—
These are our school . . .

and the spirit within it . . . the student realizes that educaiton is the strongest foundation of a forceful personality . . . if he keeps an open mind, out of class and in, he may attain his lofty aims, so when summer comes he need not dream of what might have been.

Superintendent Smith and Director of Instruction Weaver are helped in many ways by the public-spirited persons who serve on or with the school board. In spite of the press of countless responsibilities, they unselfishly assume even more responsibility in planning for the progress of our schools. This year they worked out reports and arrangements necessary for the $6,000,000 bond election to help finance our schools for several years. For Senior High they had the new gym completed and equipped and clothed our stage in handsome new curtains.

Mr. P. J. Weaver, Director of Instruction, and Mr. B. L. Smith, Superintendent of Greensboro Public Schools, join Mr. A. P. Routh, Senior High School Principal, to watch the state champion Whirlies in action.

Farseeing administrators and board serve the community

These school officials and board members take a very serious view of their many problems and projects. At a regular monthly meeting are, left to right, Mr. J. C. Cowan, Dr. Raymond A. Smith, Mrs. D. M. Brown, Secretary B. L. Smith, Mr. P. J. Weaver, Chairman D. E. Hudgins, Attorney R. F. Moseley, Mr. J. R. Foster, Mr. Howard Holderness, Dr. D. D. Jones.

Principal A. P. Routh, adept organizer, is the most loyal fan of every school activity Senior's principal, Mr. A. P. Routh, is far more than a mere administrator. For among the myriad duties and responsibilities of running a school the size of ours, he always finds time for giving advice and helping students and teachers get more pleasure and profit from school activities. With Mrs. Routh he takes busloads of students to many athletic events, far or near; and every year they take the seniors on a four-day tour of Washington. This year they went with the band to Chicago in December and to New Orleans with the choir in March. He is a good friend of every student and teacher and a dynamic force behind Senior's success in so many fields.

Mrs. Routh is as constant and ardent a Whirlie fan as Mr. Routh. All other Senior High activities get the some friendly attention from both.

Bond President Bob Cowan presents Mr. Routh a gift from the band as part of a half-time show in his honor.

Senior High's faculty has grown in number and variety of responsibility as the student body has increased. This year there were sixty-eight teachers, all of whom lived by a very full schedule which included many school activities, civic responsibilities, and a little time now and then for just being sociable. As a faculty club they had several meetings to get better acquainted, to improve departments and instruction, and to welcome new members to the group. First of these get-togethers was a party honoring new teachers. The hilarious program, full of the teachers' private jokes on each other, would have furnished students material for perpetual blackmail.

Several teachers enjoyed the trips with student groups to Chicago, New Orleans, and Washington this year. At commencement the faculty tea for seniors carried on a very pleasant faculty-student tradition initiated several years ago.

Students don't monopolize school spirit—teachers share it with them

Miss Louise Smith, left, is swamped with pleas to enroll in her English 7 classes. These teachers, below, chaperoning one of the school dances, are able to give their full attention to their job. Could it be that teachers are more popular on registration day than at dances?

Senior's teachers are friendly door openers to our future

Winifred Louis Moore 1886-1954

Mr. W. L. Moore, born in Danville, Virginia, on January 16, 1886, was the machine shop instructor at Senior High School from January, 1944, to October 9, 1954, when his going suddenly left a great void in our midst. Mr. Moore was a Christian gentleman, gracious and considerate, with a keen sense of humor and a gentle wit. He always took seriously everyone else's importance, but never his own. No one could have endeared himself more deeply to his fellow teachers and to his students.

Parents and teachers go after solution to many student problems

Commanders of the P-TA forces are Mrs. J. Dan McConnell, First Vice-President; Mr. H. H. Jordan, President, Mrs. M. B. Bennett, Second Vice-President and Program Chairman.

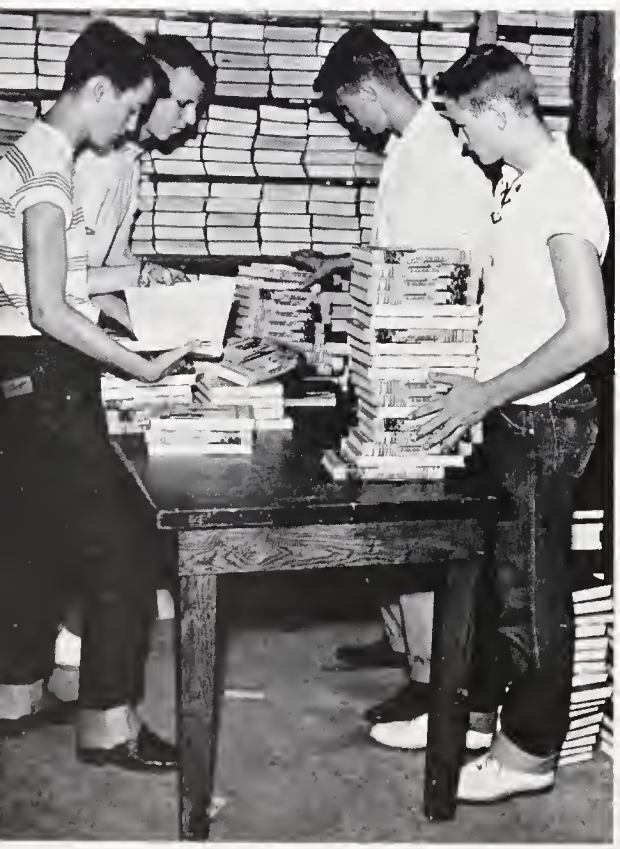
Raising and supplying funds for a scholarship, welfare work, Whirligig and other projects for the benefit of students kept this year's P-TA busy. Being co-sponsor of College Day took a lot of time, effort and money, and these were adequately furnished. With the closing of the Youth Center the P-TA organized afternoon instruction in bridge, dancing and photography. At frequent board meetings and five large group meetings during the year, parents and teachers planned and worked together to help solve as many student problems as possible.

P-TA Board members and school leaders enjoy lunch together in the home economics laboratory. They are, around first table, Mrs. T. C. Hoyle, Miss Lucille Browne, Jimmy Jordan, Mr. A. P. Routh. Second table: Mrs. Henry Sikes, Mrs. C. C. Harmon, Mrs. M. B. Bennett, Mrs. K. H. Boydell, Mrs. Richard Dunn, Mrs. J. H. Rountree. Standing: Sue Simmons, Mrs. Arthur Burnet, Mrs. Nellie Blackburn, Mr. H. H. Jordan.

Classwork broadens our horizons, makes us aware of our roles in the world

Five majors? Three study halls? Two lunch periods? Mr. Routh hears reasons for them all with an open mind.

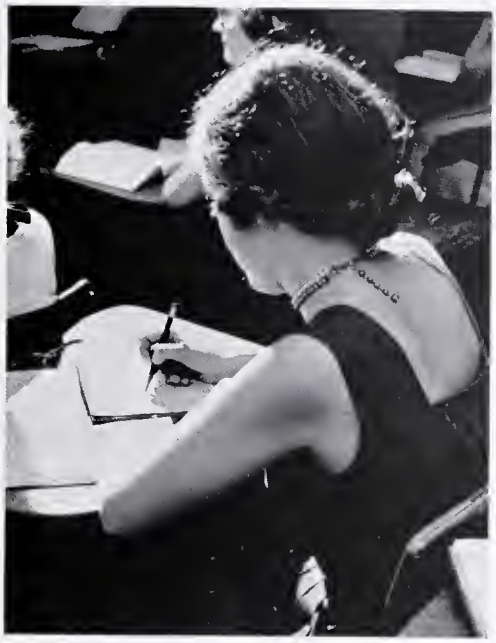
Think of all the weighty knowledge these bookroom boys have handled. Mr. Anderson's workers distribute the text books at the beginning of each year.



The diploma is up there waiting. Looking ahead, past the moment of grasping that tangible proof of years spent learning and growing, "Senior High Sam" turns also to gaze backward for a moment. He begins to realize the vital part his classroom experiences have played in helping him step from childhood to maturity.

How strange Senior High was after the sheltered security of junior high! Wide halls, rushing hordes, and heavy books were at first overwhelming. Sam, like the other sophomores, felt lost and confused; but student council members explained regulations and showed him the way around. He was in.

It didn't take him long to know that studying, though not his favorite, must be his chief pastime. He spent hours searching woods for seemingly extinct biology specimens, only to have Mrs. Blackburn mistake his final diagram of the amoeba for one of the human liver. In algebra quadratic equations turned out to be fun and very stimulating. While in English Silas Marner took him to a strange but very real world, widening his understanding of people.



Ancient Hebrew? No, it's only the more modern heiroglyphics she is learning in shorthond closs.

Sophomores learn of the rise, decline, ond foll of the Romon Empire in Mrs. Mory Modlin's Lotin closses.

Bridging the gap

from childhood to maturity, we grow from comics to classics

A book review on Mondoy . . . a report on Benjomin Fronklin on Wednesdoy . . . Whot would we do without our well-stocked library?

Courtesy, cooperation, good citizenship assume new worth

In speech class and competition of speech contests he acquired enough poise to offset trembling in voice and knees. Building a Roman house for Latin and J.C.L. made him appreciate the ancient peoples. Bible projects brought him a deeper understanding of the meaning of the Scriptures and encouraged higher ideals. He was growing.

Junior year brought new responsibilities. He was no longer content to coast along, and through competition his ambitions grew. During his sophomore year he had developed courtesy and cooperation in the class rooms; now he discovered a new respect for learning and a new loyalty for teachers.

Geometry entered. Though Euclid could be very difficult at times, Sam subdued him and managed to prove his share of theorems at the board. Typing was a useful subject, for autobiographies and term papers were to come, and all kinds of new opportunities opened up for the one who could type.

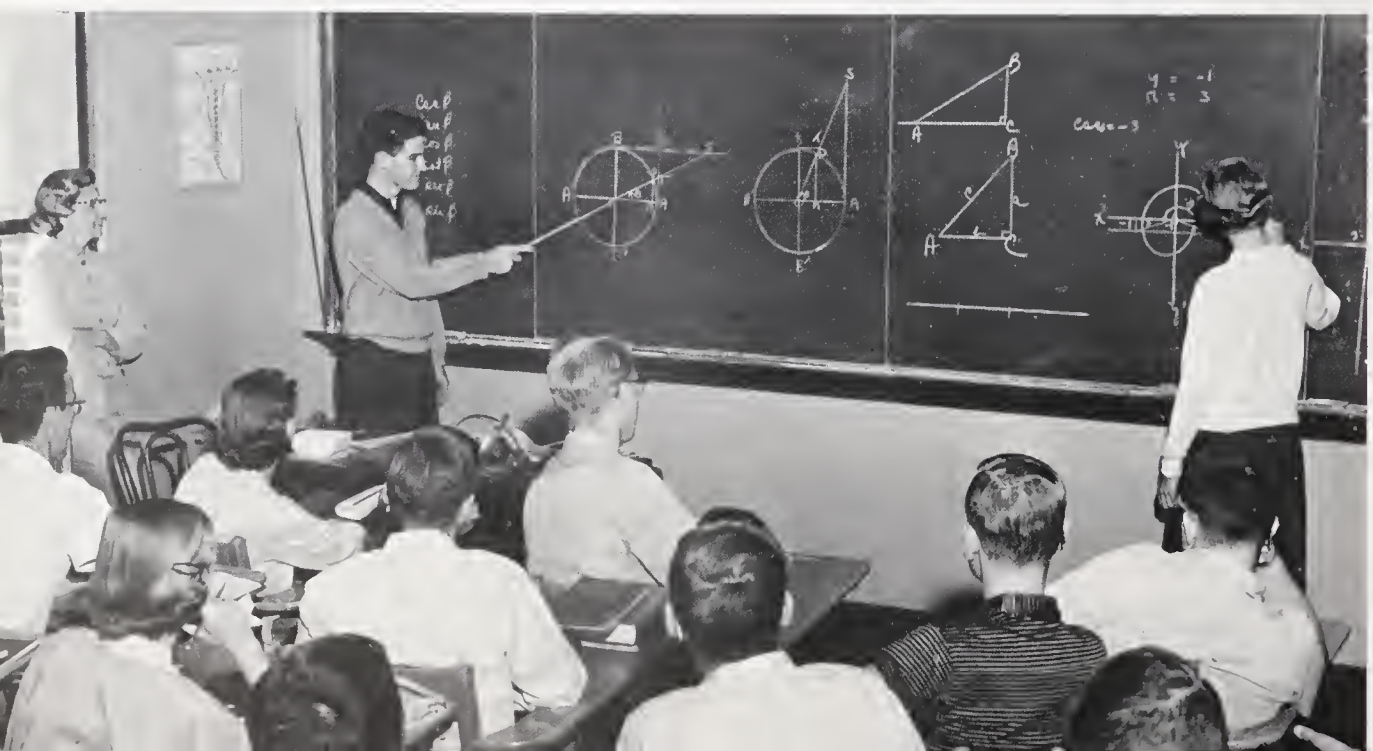
Miss Ida Belle Moore's trig classes behold new worlds apening before them in the realm of higher math.



Cleveland and Miss Margie Gabriel's girls' physical education classes learned something more about baseball in September, 1954.

We learn lessons in relationships: loyalty to teachers, respect for learning, tolerance for others' beliefs

In history he traveled far and wide, learning how much we owe our ancestors. And though he could list the causes of the Punic Wars, he was ignorant of today's affairs until a class in current events brought him up-to-date. Creative writing was painful when he had to listen to his creations torn to pieces by the class; yet before it was over he was planning a writing career. In glee club and orchestra he found a love for music; and physical education gave him all kinds of opportunities to show his sportsmanship, learn to enjoy games, make new friends. The joy of creating and the valuable prize he won for a design were only part of the rewards his woodworking class brought to him. He was beginning to find out how to enjoy living and working with other people.

A rather complex experiment fascinates the members of Mr. Jack Luttrell's chemistry class.

One of the most nervous men at Senior High School is Corporal Ernest Sewell, who teaches the student driver training course.

Finally his senior year and a new sense of belonging came. Now Sam knew his classmates and valued their friendship. With them he learned to drive sensibly and ably; and in language classes he had fun talking in another language with them. Together they memorized "Whan that Aprille . . ."; and in chemistry they worked together over their fascinating "witches' brews."

Foreshadowing our future,

Mrs. Jessie Belle Gorrell's Spanish classes learn by board drill as well as by conversation in Spanish.

Mr. Robert Fredrickson's history class finds slides and movies helpful in learning of the past.

Perhaps they're not as drastic as Dior's but you can bet that the creations of Miss Mary York's home economics classes will be original and pretty.

Lough and learn seems to be the policy in Miss Joonne Scott's English class.

class experiences mold and influence us

With them he admired girls who made their own clothes in home economics and showed promise of becoming efficient wives.

Sam had learned much that was practical. He had also learned much that would make life richer for him. As he went to get his diploma, he knew that he was already well on the way to future usefulness.

Members of Mr. Stonley Johnson's physics class meet everything from worksheets to the theory of relativity with calm composure.

The Seniors headed by capable leaders found their final year the most rewarding yet in all phases of school life. Officers are Tip Noe, Treasurer; Rita Boggs, Secretary; Rob Pearce, President; Paddy Wall, Vice-President; and Miss Estelle Mitchell, Adviser.

The Senior Class exemplifies GHS spirit at its highest peak

For the Class of '55 graduation is no longer a dream, but reality. Reminiscing, we think of days which had no particular meaning at the time, but now become days of treasured memories—the superior feeling we had, sitting in the center section of the auditorium, as we watched sophomores craning around huge columns, the nervous excitement as our friends were tapped into Torchlight, the tremendous thrill as our star halfback sprinted seventy-five yards for a touchdown, and the overwhelming realization that there would be no more senior class, Washington trips, class days, teas, luncheons, or graduation nights just like these for us. The clanging lockers, band and orchestra practicing for Spring contests, voices of the choir swelling as they sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," stamping feet as the bleachers shook in the gym, the cry of despair — "But I haven't even started my term paper!"—these familiar sounds will re-echo in our minds whenever we stop to remember. Our hearts will always beat faster when we hear the school song, or when we catch a glimpse of a certain person, a certain place, a certain picture that forms an unbreakable link in our chain of high school memories.

At the Homecoming game on October 29 Chris Velonis, Bill Greene, Frances Strother, Kelly Maness, Homecoming Queen Kay Wrenn, and Jimmy Jordan were more interested in a spectacular fire works half-time display than in their admiring audience.

As new opportunities appear, wide-awake Juniors put spirit into action

Led by their aspiring class officers the Juniors continue to climb the ladder of their high school career. The officers are, top to bottom, John Gardiner, President; "Chic" Farbes, Vice-President; Sally Jordan, Secretary; Barbara Jessup, Treasurer; Mrs. Mary Madlin, Class Adviser.

In May 1955 Juniors look back with satisfaction on the place we have made for ourselves at Senior High. From the first we plunged into every school activity open to us. One of our moments of pride this year was when our Thanksgiving Pageant turned out to be so colorful and so impressive. We whizzed through our projects to raise our yearbook fund and sallied forth on several nights to sell our stationery and Christmas wrapping from door to door and stuff our treasury for future needs. Dozens of us went to Chicago in December with the band and to New Orleans in March with the Choir. We had our share of All-State orchestra members; and Torchlight tapped several of us to be the nucleus of next year's Torchlight chapter at Senior High.

The Thanksgiving Pageant, presented by the Junior Class, depicted various Thanksgivings from Colonial times to the present.

The sophomores, class of 1957, were the largest class yet to enter Senior High. Some of the plebeians said that after paying so many book fees and filling out so many schedule cards they felt like some mechanical device. And, being true sophomores, they were primarily baffled by locker combinations and elusive third floors and elevators. Their first report card brought them a really big shock. But when they attended their first pep rally and sang the Alma Mater, they felt that now they really belonged at Senior High. The Torchlight tapping in December was deeply thrilling and impressive. But when the band left for Chicago it was even more thrilling to see that several sophomores were also included in the group that was to do and learn so much on that unforgettable trip.

Under the guidance of their class adviser, Mrs. Kathryn Pierce, the sophomores were prompt in raising their $200 for Whirligig. By selling pencils imprinted with football and later basketball schedules, and by peddling Christmas cards to all the homerooms, they learned to carry out plans on a grand scale. Spring initiated them into the additional mysteries of semester examinations and Senior's collegiate-type registration. Some of them took part in various assembly programs and even in May Day.

Thus, as new stores of literature, history, science and the arts opened to them, they were also busy in many ways that were changing them from the shy and uncertain group of September to a more mature and accomplished class.

Eagerly exploring new fields,

the Sophomores plunged right into Senior High's activities

Beautiful Kay Wrenn, Homecoming Queen, escorted by Jimmy Jordan, was the main attraction as she appeared on the football field Alumni Night.

The Student Council is powerful in crystallizing student opinion

Every Tuesday at 2:35 Jimmy Jordan was rapping his gavel to start the Student Council on another hour of constructive thinking, discussion, and planning. The council had many responsibilities and all year its members were busy with programs, projects and special events. The Sophomore elections, the Homecoming game, Career Day, the Midwinter Dance, and school elections in the spring were all part of the council's responsibility and proof of their sincere efforts to keep Senior High's morale high and the atmosphere wholesome and friendly.

U. N. C. Chancellor Robert House made the keynote speech at the assembly on Career Day, which was arranged by the council. Student leaders were Sue Simmons, Wayne Griffin, and Jimmy Jordan. Faculty co-sponsors were Miss Mary E. Blackmon and Miss Dorothy McNairy.

In October Jimmy Jordan and Sue Simmons went to the state student council convention in Shelby. They came back with new and enthusiastic ideas and a new outlook.

One of the problems the council tackled this year was that of transferring the traditional May Day exercises indoors, with the queen being crowned at the senior prom.

Beginning with the program to introduce the Honor Code to sophomores early in September, the council never ceased its efforts to keep the Code effective and to maintain sportsmanlike conduct at all games and school events.

The entire school joined with the Student Council in wishing the maids and janitors a happy holiday by giving them their Thanksgiving dinner.

Shakespeare would never recognize this version of his "Romeo and Juliet," featured in the 1954 Torchlight Talent Show.

A firm hand placed on his shoulder marked one's exciting beginning as a member of Torchlight, National Honor Society. At the fall tapping sixteen Seniors judged outstanding in leadership, scholarship, service, and character were chosen by their fellow students and the faculty.

Becoming a member of Torchlight was more than just the honor of being tapped. It brought new and challenging responsibilities, for Torchlight is an active organization from September to May. This year they served as hosts at the successful College Day. In addition to several picnics and parties, spring brought the annual Torchlight Talent Show, the proceeds from which went to a scholarship for a worthy senior. In March, members nervously memorized speeches for the spring tapping and counted votes with great secrecy. At graduation receiving a diploma sealed with the Torchlight emblem was one more reward for all the efforts to excel.

Two friends share a deep thrill as Susan Hege leads Sue Simmons to the stage.

"Student, spare that High Life!" is the fervent plea of each staff member of Senior's bi-monthly newspaper. These stalwart souls are characterized by a glassy-eyed stare and vague muttering of "Deadlines Wednesday, make-up Tuesday, paper out Friday. Or is it make-up Wednesday, deadlines Tuesday? or is it—? Oh, dear, my next news story will be dictated from a straight jacket."

Each carelessly trampled-on High Life was a stamp on the staffer's heart, for into the eight pages of Senior's Saga had gone a little bit of everything he had. To the casual observer, Room 10 at third period was a large bit of pandemonium, but it was organized pandemonium to Miss Joyner and Martha Ann, who were forever pleading, "Please, Dicky, we don't need any more controversial articles. No, Jerry, we aren't going to change the name of 'Gym Shorts' to 'Farber by a Nose.' All right, suggestions for news? Then go out and make some. We have 576 inches of blank space to fill up." Out of these "discussions" emerged the reams of yellow paper filled with the who, what, why, when, and where of Senior. Hopefully Eugenia and Pat waited for the galleys to see what new mistakes a combination of one-finger typists and Acme's typesetters could dream up. Just before Christmas, a gap was left when assistant editor Lynn was hospitalized. "We never appreciated her 'heads' until it came to our writing them," groaned Donna and Diane. Laughs, groans, sighs, headaches—all combined to make the year race by with the deadlines. Putting issue 17 "to bed" left everyone proud to be able to say, "I'm on the High Life staff."

seemed endless. Each day writers, engraving editors, artists, typists and class editors descended upon the tiny Whirligig room, each very sure that his was the most vital job to be done on this new creation. Having won our fifth All-American, we just had to make this Whirligig even better. Betty and Bobbie held the "birdie" for our patient photographers, Mr. Martin and Mr. Miller. The class editors inspired us all with their quiet competence. Sally's salesmen went forth daily to use their winning smiles and bring in the ads and sponsorships that paid our bills. Writers wore out the Thesaurus and their patience trying to find a new way to say the same old things. As February 1 loomed on the horizon, Susan frantically slapped deadlines on everyone, and Miss Powell began checking over copy in her sleep. After the final mad rush to get copy complete and the dummy exactly right, we saw it off to Charlotte with a sigh of deep relief and began counting days till delivery time.

Quill and Scroll honors writers

Deep in the throes of creation, and pecking away on their typewriters, Quill and Scroll members spent many hours editing material for Homespun, Senior's literary magazine, published early in April. Its production was in capable hands, for these editors had won membership in this literary honor society only through excellent work on either the High Life or Whirligig and a flair for writing. Along with this project the aspiring authors and journalists also sponsored a talk by Mr. John Harden, Greensboro author, at a spring assembly.

There were fifty students in the office practice group this year, making three different classes necessary for the first time. To prove that this year's group were good students and industrious, one-third were on the honor roll consistently. Their main objective this year was to work, not primarily to earn money, but to learn how to hold a job effectively. They worked at every type of office job, becoming as familiar with ediphones and teletype machines as with files and typewriters.

The office practice groups included only two boys this year, but the great number of diamonds flashing on third fingers was proof that there were young men not far away. These students joined the other cooperative groups in a party at Camp Herman last fall. They also worked and planned together to make this year's Bosses' Banquet the biggest and best ever given. An assembly program was given in March by all three groups to prepare the way for another year of the cooperative program.

More interesting job possibilities caused D.O. Trades classes to double in size over last year's. The number of girls increased from two to eleven. Of these, nine worked at Cone Hospital, largest employer involved. Last spring, as soon as this year's classes were enrolled, these twenty-nine students attended a workshop to learn about the responsibilities of a co-op student.

Early in the fall all of the co-op groups joined in a get-acquainted party at Camp Herman. Soon afterward the D.O. Trades group went to Battleground for another party; and there were many more parties during the year.

and social security. Their assembly program with the other co-op groups in March was their opportunity to enlighten the student body and to advertise the D.O. Trades program. As a sort of reward for growth in experience and maturity, they enjoyed the Bosses' Banquet on March 15. This they helped to plan and make a real success. The final social event of their year was the pleasant but rather sad party honoring the departing seniors from their group.

First big event of the year for the forty-nine D.E. Club members was a fashion show for the student body at a Tuesday assembly. The audience "oh-ed" and "ah-ed" as the models exhibited their attractive outfits to the tune of Bob Poole's colorful comments and descriptions.

Square dances, wiener roasts, theater parties, and "Dutch" dinners at the Mayfair kept the club members full of plans for their spare moments. The club also made several field trips to such interesting and varied places as the Daily News Printing Company and White Oak Mills.

In February the club was host to the state convention of D.E. Clubs. James Lester, 1954 graduate of Senior High, presided over this meeting. Joanne Plott, who had won the district convention speech contest at High Point in November, participated in the state contest. Nancy Lou Way was a contestant in the job application contest. Local president Jerry Varner was elected President of the state organization.

On March 15 one of the most eagerly awaited events of the year was the Bosses' Banquet, where all bosses were honored by a dinner and a very entertaining program.

Les Artistes put their artistic talents to practical use

Les Artistes, Senior's art club, this year channeled its artistic talents into community service. The club prepared posters, did silk screen processing, and held exhibitions for several community organizations. Programs by various artists in Greensboro brought the world of art into the club on a practical basis. They heard speakers discuss commercial art, art in industry, illustration, and fashion design. The club also had programs on art as a cultural attribute and, to broaden their vistas, programs concerned with other arts such as the dance and movies.

Library Council gives efficient aid to librarians and students

The officers of the library staff are responsible for all sorts of courteous services. They are, left to right, Treasurer Bill O'Brien, Assistant Librarian Mrs. Kathryn Ayers, Vice-President Barbara Callisher, Secretary Lila Malone, Librarian Miss Mildred C. Herring, and President Charles Woods.

Headed by Charles Woods and his assistant Barbara Callisher, this year's Library Council also included the state president, Terry Garrison and the state reporter, Betty Sink. The thirty-one members of this group came daily to help Miss Herring and Mrs. Ayers carry on the numerous and varied duties of library. Hundreds of acts of service were performed daily by them as they arranged book displays or bulletin boards, helped students find materials, showed films and filmstrips. As proof that they were really hard-working people, observe the fact that they handled over 36,000 books this year and showed over 1,400 films.

Members of the library staff are, center, clockwise, Fran Ahalt, Ann Dumaresq, Katherine Leonard, Barbara Callisher, Lila Malone, Bill O'Brien, Ann Cole, Joan Phillips, Pat Frazier. Back: Ann Taylor, Celia Strader, Joanne Saleeby, Carolyn White, Sue Denny, Jae Saleeby, Miss Mildred C. In its four years of existence at Senior High School, the Ben L. Smith F.T.A. Club has served well its purposes of encouraging, informing and recruiting. There were 75 members this year, over seven times as many as when the club was organized. Early in the fall the club assembly was so appealing that a large part of the student audience refused to leave the auditorium when it was over. The magnet was Miss North Carolina, Betty Jo Ring from Lexington, whose autographs they demanded. She is a teacher who came to bear vivid witness to the fact that teachers do have glamour and beauties have brains. In her talk she recommended teaching as a profession to anyone with a genuine love for people and an interest in helping others.

As a project the club compiled information about how many former members are preparing in college to be teachers. Many of the members spent one period each day for several weeks helping teachers at Brooks School. There they read stories to the children, helped them mix paint, and assisted the teachers in preparing materials for classwork. One program included a panel of teachers discussing the problems of teaching; another featured a very fine movie on teaching. "Men are like street cars. If you miss one, there's sure to be another along soon." Such a statement provided the theme for the Playmasters' main contribution to the thespian world this year. The play, appropriately titled "Men Are Like Streetcars", was enthusiastically applauded by the Greensboro public, who saw its presentation in February after a snowy postponement. Another comedy, "How to Propose," was a fall assembly program, while the traditional contest plays were given in the spring. Not only were the Playmasters engaged in dramatic productions, making scenery, and learning the art of applying makeup, but they also contributed the new silver dream curtain which was hung in December. Their president Ann Dumaresq was the winner of the "I Speak for Democracy" contest. Other oration contests and debates, plus several one-act plays given during regular classes, completed a successful year for Miss Mozelle Causey and her potential "Barrymores."

One might pass by Room 313 some afternoons and find a group of students holding a meeting in Spanish. A new club at Senior, La Alianza Espanola was formed last spring. First program was the showing of slides on Mexico. At Christmas the club celebrated with Spanish and Mexican games and breaking the pinata, a colorful jar filled with gifts. Interspersed with the monthly programs were business meetings, where members had a chance to improve their ability to speak Spanish. A highlight of the year was receiving pins in the spring. Through these activities members developed a greater appreciation and knowledge of their neighbors across the border.

Junior Classical League revitalizes the musty ancients

Julius Caesar's "Veni, vidi, vici" could well apply to the Junior Classical League, for this organization has had an impressive array of conquests. To the flippant tune "I'm glad you're dead, you rascal you", toga-clad members presented a parody on Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" in May 1954. To start off the 1954-1955 year the club was honored when Paddy Wall was elected state JCL president. More honor came when Dickie Robinson placed second in the state Latin contest. The big event of the year was the state convention on March 19, which the club was responsible for planning.

Early every morning an ominous roar was heard in sixteen places throughout our city as the buses started their morning rounds. Drivers this year wore denim jackets donated by Cone Mills and Blue Bell. To pay for their Whirligig page, several club members ushered at football games, and they even made enough extra to finance a hamburger fry. Dinner meetings, Driver-of-the-Month Awards sponsored by local Jaycees, and the Safety Council, conducted for the drivers by the Chief of Police and other officers, helped to keep interest in the Wheel Club very high this year.

The Traffic Squad keeps us headed in the right direction

The twenty-four seniors on the traffic squad dashed to their posts two minutes before the hourly stampede. Then, down the halls and stairways came the students. Five minutes later, the confused sophomores and obstinate juniors and seniors had been directed to their classes and all was quiet. Even on rainy days, with traffic jams and everyone racing against the tardy bell, the squad managed to keep everything moving in some direction, and prevented major casualties.

The students elected Bob Cowan to head this fearless band. Steve Arthur, assistant traffic chief, and Mr. Donovan Darnell, adviser, assisted Bob in his earnest efforts. In addition to doing a splendid job of controlling traffic, squad members helped on College Day by setting up tables and chairs and keeping things in general good order.

Traffic problems were well under control in the hands of capable leaders, Bob Cowan, Traffic Chief; Mr. Donovan Darnell, Adviser; and Steve Arthur, Assistant Traffic Chief

Two groups who earn unawarded medals are the stage crew and the office assistants. The girls do clerical work, run errands, and act as receptionists during their study periods. Without them the shows couldn't go on.

Choir's professional polish pays off with invitation to perform in New Orleans

Miss Eula Tuttle, Choir Director, and Assistant Director Mrs. Virginia Toenes try out a new arrangement.

Brand-new as the Queen's Men, David Tucker, Harvey Knox, Glenn Hancock, and Mac Mullis soon became quite professional.

When lively Miss Tuttle gives her sixty-voice choir its daily workout at fourth period, anything can happen and usually does (ask Miss Moore's geometry 6 class).

This year the choir had an extra incentive to work hard. They were invited to sing in late March at the meeting of the Southern Division of National Music Educators in New Orleans. While they worked and perfected their technique, Don Wall, Michael Hayes, and Susan Hege accepted the responsibility of heading the projects for raising money for the trip. Sally Durham broke all records with her first order for 979 dozen doughnuts, which were sold all over town by footsore choir members. Margie Earl headed a baby-sitting group, while Mac Mullis went into the car-washing business. Charlie O'Brien took charge of a group of boys selling Christmas trees; and Bob McConnell and helpers raised their part of the money by collecting and selling tons of scrap paper.

The entire trip to New Orleans was one grand mixture of impressions, with pride and happiness predominating even over the weariness. The choir won new fame for our school's music program and gained valuable experience in planning and carrying through a project of enormous difficulty.

However, the choir year consisted of much more than a trip, for from their October debut at an Exchange Club luncheon meeting to Baccalaureate they kept singing every type of music from "Barefoot" to "Salvation Is Created." At Spring Festival they joined a thousand aspiring young musicians from all over the state at Aycock Auditorium, to be directed by one of the nation's finest choral leaders, Dr. Lara Hoggard. Of the choir's many local programs, outstanding were the Christmas program, Spring Festival, Band and Choir Show.

The fund for the New Orleans trip grew with every tree sold by Choir members. Lower picture: the peak of excited anticipation arrived at a moment of departure.

The orchestra year included a welcoming party for sophomores and a housewarming for Mr. Fredrickson; otherwise their activities were not primarily social. They rehearsed busily for concerts and all-state events. The string section that supplied soft background music at the senior tea at the 1954 commencement and the entire orchestra as it played in assembly at a fall program demonstrated the superiority of the orchestra members' skill. But this was more truly and completely in evidence at the All-State Orchestra meeting in Winston-Salem in January. Thirty-one Greensboro members were invited to play—the largest group from any of the eleven schools participating. Susan Leonard, Ann Cole, Marsha Felt, and Katherine Leonard won top positions in this Orchestra. The All-State Orchestra spent two gruelling days of intense rehearsal and gave two concerts in Winston-Salem, one for the students at Reynolds High and a second for the public. its way to new superiority, greater honors

In April the news came—the band was invited to the Midwest Band Clinic at Chicago in December. From then on through the summer the instrumentalists worked hard and long, preparing for the concert there.

The popular half-time shows were made more interesting by the insertion of the twin sixties, two complete marching units. Shows were based on anything from Broadway musicals to a biographical sketch of Mr. Routh. Trim-liveried color guards, prancing majorettes, and dignified drum majors led the pre-game and half-time festivities. Hours of afterschool practice made these near-perfect shows possible.

The band gave two fall concerts, each very clear evidence of the months of intense practice. In December they sponsored the Navy Band Concert, for which the band members sold tickets enthusiastically. And no wonder, for the profit from the sailors' concert went into the Chicago fund.

As months passed, the band made frenzied final preparations for the long-awaited trip. Then came the day; excitement, confusion, and unrestrained happiness ruled. Thirty hours later: excitement, confusion, and happiness yet, but tired, bleary-eyed people also. Then followed rigid rehearsals, big meals, parades through Yankee land with Confederate colors flying bravely in the icy wind.

At last, the big moment! A burst of applause, a gradual calm, an encouraging word from Mr. Hazelman, a firm downbeat, and for two and a half hours young musicians poured their very hearts and souls into a tubular piece of wood, brass or silver, or a tight piece of animal skin. Afterwards came the flood of emotions — pride, happiness, utter relief.

The following days were a blur of expeditions—the Breakfast Club, a sightseeing tour, a luncheon, the tedious ride home and the glorious welcome. A great adventure had ended for 115 tired people.

The rest of the year was practically an anti-climax. There was the usual state contest with numerous "Superior" ratings, spring concerts, and that last wonderful party, to conclude the year in the grand style to which the band seems to have become accustomed.

The champion Whirlies employed vicious precision blocking to help fleet all-state Doug White get loose for his repeated scoring runs. Halfback Lou Glascock, tricky quarterback Norman Odyniec, another all-stater, and fullback Dave Thompson were also effective with their drives through opposing tackles and guards.

Although the backfield play was outstanding, an equally decisive factor in the Whirlie success was the line. Averaging slightly under 200 pounds apiece, the line could knock over tacklers like ten-pins. Tackles

Changing to conference competition, the Whirlies defeated Charlotte (24-12), Gastonia (12-7), Asheville (13-0) and arch-rival Winston Reynolds (27-13). After a non-conference tie with AA champion Reidsville (6-6), the Whirlies got back in stride by beating Salisbury (20-12). Whirlies play Durham Bulldogs fourth time for state title

On November 26 the Whirlies moved to Duke Stadium to retangle with Eastern AAA champion Durham for their fourth state championship battle. Durham had taken the title at Greensboro's expense three times. With a complete change of strategy, the Whirlies puvlerized the center of the startled Bulldog line, which had been training to halt the famous Whirlie end-sweep. On a series of beautifully executed trap plays, Norm Odyniec and Dave Thompson burst into the clear over the surprised defenders. C. W. Brand new gym helps Whirlie basketball team outscore opponents

Head coach Bob Jamieson and assistant Julian Smith looked forward to the pleasure of their first season with a fine new gym. However, the inspiration of the gleaming new floor and the added space for fans was not quite enough to bring the boys through the season with better than third place in the conference. It was a season of ups and downs, but with outstanding players and fifteen victories out of twenty games. Top scorers were "Ichabod" McCranie, with 422 points, and Dave Scurlock, with 346 points. Frank Jones was outstanding in some games, helping mightily to add up the over 1200 points scored by Greensboro against their opponents' 991. For spirit and enthusiasm Norm Odyniec stood out. The senior stalwarts of the basketball team consult "Daddy Bab" during a practice session.

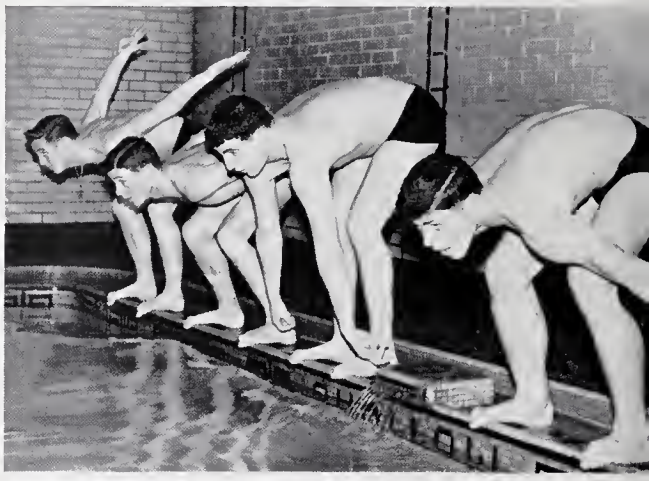
Greensboro beat Wilmington on its own floor, accomplishing what few teams have been able to do. Second and third games were lost to Asheville, 52-38, and to Burlington, 63-52, in a consolation match. It was almost worth the losses to hear the announcer praise our boys as such "perfect gentlemen." Though they ended in fourth spot in basketball, they cinched first place in the eyes of their admirers.

The Whirlies, believing that practice makes perfect, spent hours in action every afternoon.

Individual state championships won by swimmers and wrestlers

The basketball season was hardly underway before Coach Patrick Earey's swimming team had added its foaming splash and flailing arms to the 1954 sports sights and sounds. The 1954 swimmers stroked their way to a first-place tie and four individual state championships during last season. Senior Stewart Colson was state breast-stroke champion, while junior Tony Schiffman grabbed both 100 and 200-yard free style crowns. The free style relay team of Hubner, MacIntosh, Holton, and Oliver was the top relay team in the state; and junior Bob Sawyer was champion in the 200-yard backstroke.



State Champions Tony Schiffman and Bob Sawyer get set to race Randy Dodson, breast stroker, and Bob Hubner, free style man, to the other end of the pool.

Coach Lody Glenn's wrestling team piled up a 6-2 record in 1954, beating every team in the conference except state champion High Point. The Whirlies, led by seniors Ronald Sams and Pete Frye and juniors Larry Cox and Dave McGraw, placed two state champions for the season. Both Charlie Ward, 138 pounds, and Jerry Neilson, 103 pounds, won the state title in their divisions. The local grapplers were runners-up to High Point in the state tournament for the second year in succession.

As this book went to press, the 1955 wrestlers were showing promise of bringing in several state titles again this year. Charlie Ward, Dave McGraw and Bob Cowan were the veteran standouts. This year's schedule was expanded to include Duke freshmen and Goldsboro.

In February this year the swimming team was preparing for the Southeastern meet in Atlanta, with Tony Schiffman, Bob Sawyer, Randy Dodson, and Bob Hubner the strongest supporters for championship hopes. New meets this year were with high schools in Richmond and Norfolk.

As April showers turned the soccer field into a morass, the 1954 golf, tennis and track teams waded into their respective seasons. The third-place golf team won eight out of twelve matches. Led by Ed Sweetman, Gene Smith, and Ed Morrissett, the team, with pinpoint chipping and deadly putting, deserved the respect of their opponents. They failed to play their usual fine golf in the state tournament at Chapel Hill, however. Loss of one of their best players, Johnny Hughes, early in the season prevented a much better record.

Handicapped by lack of a proper track, the Whirlie track team did not hold any track meets here but participated in five quadrangular meets, coming out third in each. They finished fifth in the state meet. Junior Dave Scurlock set a new state high school record for the 880-yard run. Sophomore Lou Glascock was outstanding in performance and style in the high and low hurdles; while junior Arthur Balderacchi hurled the javelin and the discus for prodigious distances.

Girls' sports at Senior High

This year Gabe's girls initiated a new game —hallball. It is really modified football for girls, and in learning it the girls began to understand the real game a little better. In late autumn, a visitor to the girls' gym would have been amazed to see students swathed in bandages and being carried about on blanket stretchers amid many giggles. But this only identified the first aid classes. Many later wished tumbling had come before first aid, as such a succession of aching backs and bruised bones had never been felt. Soon after the tumbling some of the girl athletes began

Community profits by Alpha Omega projects

Organized three years ago by a group of eighteen sophomore boys, the Alpha Omega Hi-Y Club has grown to a membership of twenty-four, now including members from all classes. As a self-supporting organization, they render many useful services to the school and community. Monday night was the designated time for meetings held at the Central Y.M.C.A. There members discussed their projects such as selling cowbells at football games, "Whirlie" car tags, and Christmas trees, to raise money so that they might sponsor a needy family at Christmas. They combined fun with service, however, as they celebrated the coming of spring with a big party. Through belonging to this club, each boy has developed higher ideals of service and good citizenship.

Les Amis work on many projects, form lasting friendships

Under the leadership of Bob Hall, Les Amis Hi-Y Club has had a year of service and fun. The juniors and sophomores who make up the club held weekly meetings at the Y.M.C.A. With service as one of their main objectives, the boys helped needy families and held an extensive campaign to interest other boys in the recreational work of the Y. Good times were plentiful, as Les Amis gave many informal parties and participated in such activities as swimming and basketball. In the spring a great honor came to the club when President Bob Hall was selected to attend the Y.M.C.A. recreational conference in Europe in the summer of 1955.

This was the work of the "Brothers." Also they sold Christmas trees and cards to make money for a large donation to the World Service Organization to further Y.M.C.A. work in Europe, and for sending two representatives, Leon Boggs and Bob Herford, to the annual Hi-Y Conference held in Charleston, S. C. Here they gained useful information for improving their club. A talk by Skinny Brown, pitcher for the Red Sox, highlighted an interesting meeting.

Smiling marshals are indispensable at school functions

Lovely white dresses and handsome blue suits identified our marshals at most school functions. These friendly juniors distributed programs and escorted people to seats at both school and civic activities. They were indispensable at band concerts, plays, Civic music programs, special assemblies and the all-important graduation exercises of their senior class friends. Their adviser, Miss Rebecca Frazier, was always on hand to adjust a blue and white ribbon and to give last-minute instructions.

A successful year began for the Greensboro DeMolays with the installation of officers in October. Then the boys undertook a number of service projects, paid for by selling light bulbs, waxed paper and Christmas tree lights. On December 29-30 came their fourth anniversary and with it an unforgettable celebration. High point of the two-day festivities, which included two luncheons, a square dance, a banquet, and a semi-formal dance, came when Zade Turner was crowned Sweetheart of DeMolay. In the spring the members' main task was improving their organization; and soon the boys were packing for the long-awaited trek to the beach.

Order of Rainbow

Before school started last fall the Rainbow girls attended a state convention of their organization, in weather so hot that some literal-minded creature tried to fry an egg on the street. Then followed a prefect week at the beach.

After school started, furnishing the enthusiasm and zest for the services and responsibilities required of them was the main contribution of the Rainbow girls to their organization. This year taking favors to the Oxford Orphanage, Shrine Hospital, and the polio hospital gave each girl a sense of satisfaction. Another activity of the group was helping prepare and serve meals to the Masons and Eastern Stars.

For a change from serious responsibilities, the Rainbow girls had a wonderful dance at the Shrine Club. This came in January and furnished plenty of reasons for forgetting impending examinations.

Some of that little spirit's influence is evident in all school organizations, but there is more than a generous school-spirit haze around the Key Club. Members of this club moved around in its haze selling pennants, programs, and cushions at the football games to make money for their services to the student body. Those indispensable school directories are the result of many hours of work by the club members, who generously donated them to us. At Christmastime the club's mist glowed with color when the front hall got its holiday decorations.

The victory bell that helped our shouts of victory ring higher at games this year was a gift from this club. The boys are frequent luncheon guests of the Kiwanis Club, who sponsors their organization and encourages them in their unselfish services to their school.

With the sweet flavor of victory on their lips, great numbers of teenagers crowded up the narrow steps to the Youth Center after an exciting football thriller, or wandered into the girls' gym after a fast and furious basketball game. These Open Houses were sponsored by various civic organizations, the P-TA, and the Recreation Department. Though lack of funds closed the old Youth Center, Brokie Lineweaver and his fellow Youth Council members have done an excellent job in the face of many difficulties to keep civic and student interest in a youth center alive.

Greensboro Police Chief Jeter Williamson advises the boys along the safety road in their driving; Mr. Richard Brownlee, stock car expert, advises them about such things as how to condition their cars for the greatest possible efficiency and safety. They have spent little time in socializing, but have put in most of their meeting time trying to get organized and to find a suitable garage for their autos. Their officers are President Jerry Petty, Vice-President Larry Reece, Treasurer C. G. Hayes, and Secretary Worth Squires.

Junior Red Cross helps the needy

"Service to others" seemed to be the motto of the Junior Red Cross members, for they were often governed by its suggestion. At an early fall meeting committees were appointed and projects got under way immediately. One of the most successful was the Christmas party at the County Home, which included refreshments and entertainment for the residents. Also there were birthday gifts for disabled veterans. First aid and home nursing courses helped to fit members to be even more useful.

Mariner ship Joseph Conrad has eventful year of dry-land sailing

The meeting of the MSS Joseph Conrad was called to order each Monday night in the scout room of the First Presbyterian Church by adviser Jean Ayers' famed "Ya'll, shut up!" Amid the click of knitting needles, many argyles and plans slowly took shape. Conversations often involved a possible cruise during the summer, perhaps to the Florida Keys and Cuba, the "Outer Banks," or Chesapeake Bay. In answer to the question, "Money?", the replies which flew thick and fast included such varied things as "a water ballet" and "a rummage sale." After instruction in first aid or, maybe, knot tying, the meeting was adjourned by someone's earnest plea, "Dava, may I have a ride home, huh?"

The "Davy Jones" meets every Tuesday night throughout the school year at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church. Year-round week-end outings are at the base on High Rock Lake. There sea scouts specialize in all types of aquatic activity, with sailing as their favorite sport. The group owns three moth class boats which they built. Bellettes Club

"Congratulations!" shouted a Bellette, as a fellow member came in gaily swinging a set of rarely-possessed car keys. As the meeting began, someone mentioned candy, with the immediate response: "I hate the very thought of candy!" Evidently a certain member had just ended her endless candy sale. Patsy collected dues, someone explained that geometry had kept Sandra at home again, and Joanne and Marilyn talked of double-dating next week-end. As the chatter turned to dance plans, Norma left early as usual, but not before she had admired the diamond on the third finger of Linda's left hand. Thus went a typical Bellette meeting. Even more important were the Care Packages, hayride, ice-cream party, and slumber parties, which filled the year of each Bellette.

She remembers the doughnut sale, the cheerful faces of the polio patients they visited at Thanksgiving, the progressive dinner, the swaying figures lost in the filmy mist of dresses at the Christmas Dance with the L.S.P.'s, and finally the fun and excitement of the week at Myrtle Beach.

E.S.A. Club

"Hey, y'all, please cut the noise," pleaded Frances, as Mary Jane rattled on about Reidsville, and the Garvins continued another of their constant controversies. "Well, can't I ask her just one thing?" begged a sophomore as Frances gave her a warning glance. Thus began another E.S.A. meeting. Whether the girls would discuss their "Stairway to the Stars" dance, held in the fall with the W.S.T.'s, their Thanksgiving and Christmas projects, the Plantation party, or a future pajama party was really of no consequence, for club meetings were always fun. As a major project the girls sent to a nursery school a little girl who would otherwise have been left at home alone. As Putsie's jeepster was filled with laughing juniors, another meeting came to a close. All minds were turned ahead to golden suntans, a moonlit ocean, and a week of summer frivolity.

G. W. I. Club

G.W.I. seniors are determined to improve the city fire department. Someone will be surprised when they answer the next alarm.

Very often G.W.I. club meetings were hectic, for Susan and "Cheech" were finishing argyles for Christmas, Sally was working on her chemistry, Sue was planning the spring dance with Flynn of the Les Soeurs, and by eight-thirty "Pop" was at the door for Lina Henley. Before much could be accomplished the impossible happened, and Sue was staring at the four walls of her hospital room for many days after her operation. She was up in time for the Christmas Progressive Dinner, and from then on, the club was never without its Wittiest president. The doughnut campaign, welfare projects, Plantation party, Mexican initiation—all helped to make it an unforgettable G.W.I. year.

Les Soeurs Club

"And squaw bury Shortcake!" moaned Lila as Gabe's girls rocked with laughter. As usual, Lila's funny stories were endless, but Flynn's whistle (which was really Gabe's, in case any of you Les Soeurs are still in the dark) always brought immediate silence. Welcoming the New Year with that special person at the progressive dinner and late show, the swaying figures lost in the loveliness of pastel dresses at their dance with the G.W.I.'s, the many slumber parties in Flynn's rumpus room—these spelled fun in capital letters for the Sisters. Water skiing at White Lake with Martha Bright, helping the Cerebral Palsy children, and sending a little child to Nursery School added to the well-rounded activities of each Les Soeur.

A year of big things and little things, but all worth remembering—that is just what it has been for every L.S.P. Three Torchlight members, four precious majorettes plus beautiful Julianna, star of the show, a generous share of council members, superlatives, and cheerleaders—these depict the "always helping, always serving, always busy" lives of the Little Saints. The "angels", donning Bermuda shorts in the dead of winter for club meetings, but displaying strictly feminine froth for their Christmas dance, have had a fun-filled year. The candlelight perfection of the Plantation, the grateful t.b. patients who received manicure sets from the members, all-night bridge games after the progressive dinner, and the cherished friendship with their new adviser, Unni Kjosnes of Norway — all these molded a package marked "Specially Perfect" for every L.S.P.

"Oh, pain!" exclaimed Mary Anne, as Gayle picked up the "foot-high" discard pile in a canasta game, "this just isn't my day!"

Such expressions as this were heard at almost all the meetings of the S.D.C.'s, a group of sophomores and juniors who had formed their club while in the eighth grade at Central. Their club colors are navy and light blue, they meet on Thursday nights, and oftentimes, for no reason at all, one member will punch another and exclaim, "Say, is that your dog?" Those are the "facts and figures". As for parties, the club was by no means lacking. Joan's hamburger supper, Betty's weiner roast, Gayle's Christmas slumber party, Carol's tea, and the New Year's dance — each claimed its respective share of S.D.C. time. Scrapbooks for children at the Polio Hospital and other projects also received a good share of attention. The year's activities would provide many worth-while pages in the S.D.C. scrapbook.

While Marty and Mary Wheeler compared notes on State College, Sarah Edwards told every marvelous detail of life in the Air Force. Sylvia, still shaken from the harrowing experience of riding in a car which she, herself, drove, arrived and took an aspirin to calm her nerves. Mrs. Wheeler, club adviser, became more broad-minded as the minutes flew by. Sara Tetterton usually missed refreshments; but she wasn't one to complain, for Frank was always waiting to take her home. So went the meetings of the Signets. But there was much more. Fruit baskets for the County home, Care packages, favors for the polio and cerebral palsy Schools, Easter baskets for otherwise forgotten children, the Christmas dance, the annual hayride, the all-important tea for new members, the summer swimming parties — all of these helped to create the glow of happiness in each member of the Signets Club.

S.L.C. initiates began the year in Rip Van Winkle fashion dressed in red and white night-shirts at the first home football game. After that they were a definite part of the club. They attended a successful Plantation party, witnessed Susie's and Sandra's constant "corner gabbing", gained extra pounds from Joanne's delicious refreshments, helped to send food to a needy family at Thanksgiving and Care packages at Christmas, and helped to fill up Barbara's car after every meeting. The Country Club swimming party was a fitting conclusion to a year of fun, frolic, and happy memories.

Venettes Club

"How are you going to club?" was the most frequent Thursday night question of each Venette, as she headed for another meeting of laughter, good food, and Holley's sentimental records. Those meetings were usually full of exciting plans—for the New Year's Eve party, the Valentine dance, or one of the sleepless slumber parties where Miss Bogart told numerous delightful ghost stories to tired, sleepy Venettes. For the new members the swimming party and weiner roast given in their honor and the initiation at the S&W were special nights to remember. In addition there was the cold October night at the fair, where red faces did not belong to clowns, but to Venettes. The year was a happy one, but now all plans and dreams are turned toward the summer beach trip, the last club activity for the newly-graduated Seniors.

"Rita, please help me with my Spanish!" "Amy, here's Dick," "D. Ann, Bill's playing basketball tonight." How familiar these words sound, for they were a definite part of every W.S.T. meeting. "Paddy Sue, he didn't get an invitation," "Phyllis, it's five o'clock in the morning!" These bring back vivid recollections of the autumn Stairway to the Stars and, afterward, the mouth-watering breakfast and slumber party. While W.S.T.'s were Dancing in the Dark at the Plantation, such remarks as "That floor show was hilarious!" "Barbara, let's dance," floated across the smoke-filled room. The events and activities of a wonderful year have too soon become only lovely memories for the W.S.T. members.

G-30 Club

What's so interesting out there, boys? Is Josie Word passing by? These interested G-30 officers are Tommy Iseley, Treasurer; Bill Franklin, Secretary; Bob Herford, Vice-President; Jerry Lee, President; Mr. Jack Luttrell, Adviser.

When the G-30 Club was organized in 1953, the charter members looked forward to a club of thirty members. This year their dream became reality. Every Wednesday night twenty-nine boys descended upon some poor member's house; and only with the aid of Mr. Jack Luttrell, club adviser, and President Jerry Lee was bedlam reduced to only mild confusion. Though business was carried on while Bob Herford tried to subdue Iseley's mad laughter, the club accomplished much. They made the "beat so-and-so" signs for football games, held a Christmas dance at the Plantation and their first annual dance this spring. They look forward now to the annual beach party.

Syitt Club

The Syitt club social whirl had its official beginning with a Christmas dance at the Plantation Supper Club. Much, however, had gone on before this. At the beginning of the year, when that hilarious Ocean Drive house party was still fresh in mind, the members learned that old hurricane "Hazel" had washed their cottage out to sea. Not to be dismayed, the members concentrated on making this year the best ever. As service projects, they "adopted" a family at Christmas time, showering them with gifts to make their Christmas a happy one. Also they collected books for retarded children. At various intervals throughout the year they sold doughnuts and decals to finance these service projects. In spite of "Hazel," they went ahead at their regular weekly meetings at the Y.M.C.A. to plan the 1955 beach trip, thus rounding out another year of fun while helping others.

A reverent service ends the Juniars' production of "Let Us Be Thankful," their portrayal of Thanksgiving through the ages.

On Tuesday mornings students and teachers eagerly converged upon the auditorium for programs presided over by student vice-president Sue Simmons. Among the most impressive were Thanksgiving and Christmas pageants, Awards Day and Class Day. Well-known public figures like Miss Betty Jo Ring, Chancellor Robert House and Mr. John Harden spoke wisely and entertainingly. A fashion show, Torchlight tappings, election campaign speeches, and a nominating convention were evidence of the variety that made our programs so interesting this year.

From speeches to pageants assemblies were well-planned and varied

GHS dances bring merry moments and dreamy delight

It was a typical Junior-Senior Prom. As the figures swayed dreamily to the haunting strains of a love song, a student could look back on a year of fun and memories. He would never forget the open houses at the Youth Center in the fall—whether he danced, joined the crowd that gathered around the jitterbug experts, or "socialized" with his friends. He would always remember the way the girls' gym really rocked during the "jam sessions" after basketball games. The memory of how he danced the night away amid blue and white stardust at the Midwinter dance was still fresh in his mind. All too soon, the nostalgic notes of "Goodnight, Sweetheart" climaxed the dance, a perfect ending to the G.H.S. social year.

Below: As the music changes tempo, the floor is relinquished momentarily to a jitterbugging couple. In spring even Normon, right, turns his attention awoy from sports os he guides his dote among the other dancing couples at the Senior prom.

College Day clears the way for a big decision

The secret of College Day's success was its chairmen: Miss Mary Yark, Miss Sara Mims, above, and Miss Lucille Brown, below.

The new gymnasium provided ample space for the sixty-five representatives to "sell" their colleges to interested seniors.

Some students were interested in the dating possibilities; but they had many other questions about entrance requirements, tuition, and curricula to fire at the representatives from colleges throughout the state and other areas, here for College Day, October 20. The spacious gym provided the setting for the interviews. D.O. Club, Torchlight, and the Library Council served as hosts, enjoying with their representatives a delicious luncheon prepared by the home economics classes. Many compliments were received on a well-planned day and a student body serious and intelligent in their questions.

Chancellor Robert House, keynote speaker, entertains and enlightens his audience on "The Power to Become."

Mrs. Robert Perrin, ex-Powers model, explains that glamour is not the only quality required for success in her profession.

Inspired by these animated cheerleaders, the faculty easily defeat the student team at the midday recreation period.

"I just happen to have a few notes with me," Chancellor Robert House from U.N.C. began as he took out his harmonica to help put across his advice to students on their "power to become." His was the keynote for the day's program, planned and directed by the Student Council. A spirited student-faculty game provided lunch-time recreation. In small afternoon sessions students heard forty leaders from many varied fields of work discuss the requirements and opportunities of their vocations, so that students were guided toward more enlightended choices for their future.

Careers Day reveals opportunities

Mr. Walter Spearman, noted writer and journalism professor is introduced by Phyllis Brooks before he informs some future authors that newspaper work is an excellent prologue to a writing career.

Highlight of the day is the crowning of Queen Gloria by beaming President Kelly Maness.

The eager, expectant crowd is hushed except for the rustling of programs and excited whispers. Suddenly the refrain of "Pomp and Circumstance" issues from the band; a procession of lovely girls with their handsome escorts slowly advance, take their places, and bow to their new Queen, honoring her on her coronation day. Their ruffled pastel gowns, whose hues are reflected in the lavish bouquets of beautiful spring flowers, billow in the breeze. All is light and gay. The sun is shining brightly, and the costumes are vivid. Even the lawn is groomed to velvet smoothness for this event. The antics of the two court jesters add merriment to the occasion.

On May Day 1954, colorful Pageant of

Where are we? Is this Queen Elizabeth's court, or Queen Titania's, maybe? No, wait a minute! Here's a loud voice: "Ladies and gentlemen, on this beautiful May 5, 1954, I bid you welcome to the Greensboro Senior High School May Day, reigned over by Gloria Gilmore, Queen of the American Festivals.

American Festivals honored a queen and delighted the spectators

Suddenly the green is alive with a succession of dances. In their native dress Indians, Gasparillas, Cotton Pickers, Masqueraders, Mountain Folk—all part of the American Festival — sing and dance before their gracious Queen. With colorful streamers the May Pole is wound, and as the shadows begin to fall, the court performs the stately minuet with the grace and elegance of bygone days. The recessional begins, and the eager spectators swarm forward with their cameras and their congratulations.

They of the BEST PERSONALITY, Margie Baren and faotball star Arthur Balderacchi, and BEST DRESSED Charles Waads and Margaret Lucas make up this charming foursame. In the background MOST TALENTED Julie Redhead and Glen Hancock reveal their skill even with unmusical instruments.

MOST INTELLECTUAL Jerry Matherly and Rachel Allen display a limitless curiosity, the secret of their superior brain power.

These Seniors have Superlative qualities Whether for talent, brains or beauty all are tops in their class

In every class there are those who seem unparalleled—matchless in their own individual way. But a senior class as large as ours has so many who seem incomparable that choosing those who surpass all others was not easy. It took a lot of discussion, comparison, cajolery, finally voting. Results revealed seniors pictured on these four pages as the peerless pairs.

That straightforward gaze and guileless smile belong to MOST DEPENDABLE Martha Ann Burnet, High Life Editor, and senior class president Rab Pearce.

MOST POPULAR Jim Jordan and Sue Simmons, student body president and vice-president, have hordes of friends. Any service for them is with a smile. Don't BEST LOOKING Tony Schiffman and Josie Ward prove it?

Each one a Superlative trait personified, these seniors are peerless

Even laden with candy, SWEETEST Lynn Boren and Bob Grant can't attract more fans than they already have. WITTIEST Dan Wall and Sue McEntire are apparently replenishing their store of cleverness from the latest published wit. And here comes FRIENDLIEST Alan Pultz and Paddy Sue Wall to add their congenial warmth to this atmosphere of sweetness and light.

Traffic chief Bob Cowan and Phyllis Brooks, MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED, seem already to have been given the key to—well, not exactly the key to a city, but to something more useful for taking fellow Superlatives to ride in. MOST COURTEOUS R. B. Arthur and Rita Boggs wait till last to get in. Already in the truck are CUTEST Susan Hege and Dannie DeSanta. Surmounting such a minor obstacle as this requires no effort at all for MOST ATHLETIC Jeneil Edwards and Norman Odyniec.

The Superlatives and senior Choir members end the "Show of Shows" with a significant and nostalgic tune—"Through the Years."

Big moments of 1954 Commencement will never be forgotten by

The speaker was nearing the end of his speech on that May 27 as I sat perspiring in my graduation gown, my hands cold against my cap. I let my thoughts wander . . . "Soon I must get up and go down the aisle to receive my diploma. I shall walk across the stage, pause, smile, shake hands with Mr. Smith; then in one fleeting instant I shall receive that diploma, the very thing I have struggled for these twelve years. Upon returning to my seat, I shall stand, sing the Alma Mater, and then go out to face a new life in the summer night. It seems strange that just last week I was laughing at myself at Class Day, for surely I was that typical sophomore. Only the other day chatting with my friends at the Faculty Tea and the Senior Luncheon, we discussed the Awards Day on which we, with other students, received

Lovely June Tew adds her melodic note to Class Day.

Even the toughest sports stars had a lump in their throat as they lined up for their last big hand at Senior.

Seniors, seething with excitement and anticipatian, line up under the walkway for their final march on graduatian night.

"Senior High Sam," a typical senior honors in many fields; the Junior-Senior Prom, when we danced away the night; and perhaps most significant, the moving Baccalaureate Sermon of Dr. Bowen at the First Baptist Church. These last days of May, 1954, I shall never forget. But now it is time for me to go—to get that diploma."

What's Ahead?

As the world's largest producer of fabrics from man-made fibers, Burlington Mills has a need for hundreds of different skills to manufacture many highly diversified products. Technical and non-technical skills are necessary in all phases of manufacturing operations, in the sales organization, and in the score of service departments that keep the wheels of this complex textile manufacturing operation turning.

Recognizing personnel as its greatest asset, Burlington is always looking for young people with competence and character to train for future positions of responsibility.

"What's Ahead With Burlington?" The answer is an unlimited horizon of opportunity for advancement and success.
